INTRODUCTION

In ten years, Dharma Vijaya Buddhist Vihara has grown from an old house sheltering a few Sri Lankan monks to a busy, vibrant center for Buddhists and friends of Buddhism from many countries.

Buddhism in America is certainly evolving and is sure to be different from Buddhism that we see in Southeast Asia. Yet we shouldn't be too hasty in discarding the valuable elements of our traditions, which have withstood the test of time and successfully performed an important function in the lives of Asian people.

One such aspect is the role of chanting in Buddhist practice. Paritta chanting plays an important part in the religious life of Buddhist countries in Asia. We believe there is a great benefit to be derived from it, and we would like these benefits to be available to all those who come to the temple. To this end, we have now prepared this second, greatly expanded, edition of our Buddha Vandana booklet, first published in 1985.

Those who are familiar with the first edition, will find a number of new selections for chanting on different occasions. Texts have been added, some more instructional than devotional. In addition, we have ended the booklet with a brief section specifically for meditators. This will give those who are following the Buddha's injunction (to "work out your own salvation with diligence") a chance to become familiar with the instructions of the Buddha on meditation.

A few words about the English translations: every single translation from the first edition has been reviewed carefully. The English chosen is not designed for beauty or for melodious chanting, but is as literal and faithful a translation of the Pali as is possible, given the limitations of space and the inherent problems of translating Pali terms into English terms (which are themselves loaded with their own cultural and religious implications). Pali is a most cogent language, getting right to the point with just a word or two. Where the suttas seem wordy, it is because of the characteristically repetitious style which was a mnemonic and pedagogical device for texts which were committed only to memory, not to paper, for several hundred years.

The existing translations of Pali texts are often widely divergent in interpretation. Many of these translations, along with various Pali dictionaries, as well as several learned monks, were consulted in preparing the translations for this booklet. The literal choice of one particular word in English often lacks the implications inherent in the Pali term in its cultural context. Where the translation is correct, but may leave some doubt as to its meaning in English without further elucidation, we have opted to leave the doubt. By being literal to as great an extent as possible, we leave the interpretation to dhamma discussion sessions.

This edition has undergone a thorough revision by a team consisting of myself, Ven. Lenagala Sumedhananda, Ven. Alubomulle Sumanasara, and by Stan Levinson, who prepared the manuscript. I wish to express my gratitude to both these able assistants and to all those who prepared the first edition and, in effect, made this revised edition possible.

For the printing of this book we express our thanks to Nalin Nanayakkara, M.D., Mrs. Dhamayanti Seneviratne, M.D., and Mrs. Rohani Jayasena, whose generous donation was given in memory of their beloved mother; to Mrs. N.T. Nanayakkara, and father, Mr. G.N. Nanayakkara; and to my close friends Mr. Ronald and Mrs. Cathy Bogan.

May all beings be happy and realize Nibbana!

DEVOTIONAL CHANTING

Homage to the Blessed One,
The Perfected One, The Fully Awakened One
(Repeat three times)

The Three Refuges

I go to the Buddha for refuge.
I go to the Dhamma for refuge.
I go to the Sangha for refuge.

A second time, I go to the Buddha for refuge.
A second time, I go to the Dhamma for refuge.
A second time, I go to the Sangha for refuge.

A third time, I go to the Buddha for refuge.
A third time, I go to the Dhamma for refuge.
A third time, I go to the Sangha for refuge.

The Five Precepts

I undertake the precept to abstain from killing.
I undertake the precept to abstain from stealing.
I undertake the precept to abstain from sexual misconduct.
I undertake the precept to abstain from lying.
I undertake the precept to abstain from intoxicants.

Homage to the Buddha

Such, indeed, is the Blessed One:
perfected, fully awakened,
endowed with knowledge and virtue;
having walked the right path,
the knower of worlds;
incomparable guide of willing persons;
teacher of gods and humans; awakened
and blessed.

Homage to the Dhamma

Well taught is the teaching of the Blessed One;
of immediate advantage; timeless;
inviting us to experience it, leading us onward;
to be known individually by the wise.

Homage to the Sangha

Wholesome in conduct is the community
of disciples of the blessed one.
Honest in conduct is the community
of disciples of the blessed one.
Wise in conduct is the community
of disciples of the blessed one.
Proper in conduct is the community
of disciples of the blessed one.
These four pairs of persons, eight individuals, this is the community
of disciples of the blessed one.
Worthy of offerings and hospitality,
gifts and homage, it is an incomparable field of merit for the world.

Buddha-Dhamma-Sangha Vandana

Arahaṃ sammāsambuddho bhagavā,

Short Salutation to the Triple Gem

Homage to Buddha, the Blessed One,
the Perfected and Fully-Awakened One.
Homage to the Dhamma, the well-spoken teaching of the Buddha.
Homage to the Sangha, the wholesome community of disciples of the Blessed One.

Offering of Light

With brightly shining light, gloom is abolished;
I pay homage to the Awakened One,
light of the three worlds,
who dispels the darkness.

Offering of Incense

With this sweetly scented incense,
carefully blended from fine woods,
I reverently come to the Exalted one,
the great one, worthy of homage.

Offering of Flowers

This bouquet of flowers,
colorful, fragrant and fine,
I offer at the sacred lotuslike feet if the Noble Sage.

May the virtue of offering these flowers help lead to my emancipation
Even as these flowers fade,
So must my body undergo decay.

Offering of Medicine

O, Venerable, kindly accept this
offering of medicine.
Please take it, great one, with your great compassion.

Homage to Stupas

I forever venerate stupas in all the lands, wherever they may be:
the relics, the Bodhi tree, and Buddha statues.

Homage to the Bodhi Tree

I venerate the Bodhi tree, seated at the base of which,
victorious over all obstacles,
the Great One realized Omniscience.

Verses of Chattamanavaka

The greatest speaker among men:
Sakya sage, holy one, whose task is done;
gone beyond, possessed of power and energy;
to you, the welcome one, I go for refuge.

Free from lust, craving, and sorrow,
unconditioned and delectable dhamma;
sweet, potent, profoundly analytic,
to this very dhamma I go for refuge.

Whatever is given bears fruit,
to four pure pairs of persons;
these eight have realized the truth,
to this very sangha I go for refuge.

Verses of the Great Being

His red sacred feet are marked with excellent wheels; his long heels are decked with marks; his feet are adorned with a chowrie and parasol. Thus is your father, lion of men.

Delicate and noble Sakya prince, his body is full of marks, a hero among men, intent on the welfare of the world. Thus is your father, lion of men.

Like the full moon is his face; dear to gods and men, he is like an elephant among men, his gait graceful as an elephant of noble breed. Thus is your father, lion of men.

Khattiya sambhava agga kulīno

sāvaka majjhagato samanindo esa hi tuyha pitā narasīho

Of noble lineage, sprung from the warrior caste, his feet honored by gods and men; his mind is well established in morality and concentration.
Thus is your father, lion of men.

Long and prominent is his well-formed nose;
like a heifer, his eyes are extremely blue,
like a rainbow are his deep blue eyebrows.
Thus is your father, lion of men.

Round and smooth is his well-formed neck; his jaw
like that of a lion, his body like the king of beasts, his beautiful skin of bright golden color.
Thus is your father, lion of men.

Soft and deep is his sweet voice, his tongue red as vermilion; his white teeth are twenty in each row.
Thus is your father, lion of men.

Like the color of collyrium is his deep blue hair,
like a polished golden plate his forehead;
white as the morning star his beautiful tuft.
Thus is your father, lion of men.

Just as the moon crosses the sky,
surrounded by a multitude of stars,
the Lord of Monks is accompanied by his disciples.
Thus is your father, lion of men.

These verses were recited by Princess Yasodhara to her seven-year-old son, Rahula , as his father , now the Buddha, was walking into the city for the first time after his enlightenment.

Verses on Victory and Happiness

When Mara, seated atop his fierce elephant Girimekhala, surrounded by troops, created a thousand weaponed arms,
the Lord of Sages conquered him by his generosity.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

When the fierce demon Alavaka,
more violent than Mara, fought all night,
the Lord of Sages conquered him
with patience and self control.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

As the elephant Nalagiri, like a terrible forest fire or thunderbolt, came at him intoxicated,
the Lord of Sages conquered him
with loving-kindness.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

When the terrible fearsome murderer,
Angulimala, pursued him,
the Lord of Sages conquered him
with psychic powers.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

When Ciñca, with a block around her belt,
appearing pregnant, tried to defame him in public, the Lord of Sages conquered her with calmness and gentleness.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

When the renowned debater, Saccaka, deviating
from the truth, blindly entered into debate,
the Lord of Sages conquered him
with the lighted lamp of wisdom.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

Nandopananda bhujagaṃ vibudhaṃ mahiddhiṃ puttena thera bhujagena damāpayanto iddh'ūpadesa vidhinā jitavā munindo
tantejasā bhavatu me jayamaṅgalāni

Duggāha diṭṭhi bhujagena sudaṭṭha hatthaṃ brahmaṃ visuddhi juti middhi bakābhidhānaṃ ñaṇāgadena vidhinā jitavā munindo
tantejasā bhavatu me jayamaṅgalāni

Etāpi buddha jayamaṅgala aṭṭhagāthā yo vācako dina dine sarate matandi hitvāna neka vividhāni c'upaddavāni mokkhaṃ sukhaṃ adhigameyya naro sapañño

The dragon, Nandopananda, was intelligent and powerful, but through his psychic advice to his disciple, the Arahat Elder,
the Lord of Sages conquered him.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

When Brahma Baka—pure, radiant, and powerful—was bitten by the snake of wrong view,
the Lord of Sages conquered him
with his medicine of wisdom.
By this power, may joyous victory be mine.

The person who earnestly memorizes and recites daily these eight verses of the Buddha's joyous victories will overcome
many types of misfortune
and will attain freedom and happiness.

Sharing Joy (Merit) With Superior Beings

May devas and nagas of great power, inhabiting the earth and other realms, share our joy (merit) and long protect the world and dhamma.

Sharing of Joy (Merit) With the Departed

May this joy (merit) obtained by me be received by my departed relatives; may they be happy.

An Affirmation

By virtue of wholesome acts
may I never associate with fools,
and may I associate only with the wise
until I attain Nibbana.

May there be timely rain,
may the harvest be abundant;
may the world prosper
and the rulers be righteous.

May the suffering not suffer,
the fearful not fear,
the grieving not grieve;
may all beings be well and happy.

A SHARING OF LOVING-KINDNESS

May I be well, happy, peaceful and prosperous. May no harm come to me; may no difficulties come to me; may no problems come to me. May I always meet with success. May I also have patience, courage, understanding, and de termination to meet and overcome inevitable difficulties, problems, and failures in life.

May my parents be well, happy, peaceful and prosperous. May no harm come to them; may no difficulties come to them; may no problems come to them. May they always meet with success. May they also have patience, courage, understanding, and determination to meet and overcome inevitable difficulties, problems, and failures in life.

May my teachers be well, happy, peaceful and prosperous. May no harm come to them; may no difficulties come to them; may no problems come to them. May they always meet with success. May they also have patience, courage, understanding, and determination to meet and overcome inevitable difficulties, problems, and failures in life.

May my family be well, happy, peaceful and prosperous. May no harm come to them; may no difficulties come to them; may no problems come to them. May they always meet with success. May they also have patience, courage, understanding, and determination to meet and overcome inevitable difficulties, problems, and failures in life.

May my friends be well, happy, peaceful and prosperous. May no harm come to them; may no difficulties come to them; may no problems come to them. May they always meet with success. May they also have patience, courage, understanding, and determination to meet and overcome inevitable difficulties, problems, and failures in life.

May those unfriendly to me be well, happy, peaceful and prosperous. May no harm come to them; may no difficulties come to them; may no problems come to them. May they always meet with success. May they also have patience, courage, understanding, and determination to meet and overcome inevitable difficulties, problems, and failures in life.

May all living beings be well, happy, peaceful and prosperous. May no harm come to them; may no difficulties come to them; may no problems come to them. May they always meet with success. May they also have patience, courage, understanding, and determination to meet and overcome inevitable difficulties, problems, and failures in life.

GREATEST HAPPINESS SUTRA

Thus have I heard: On one occasion, the Exalted One was dwelling at the monastery of Anathapindika in the Jeta Grove near Savatthi. Shortly after midnight, a certain deity, whose brilliant appearance illuminated the entire jeta grove, came to the Exalted One. After approaching, he respectfully bowed to the Exalted One and stood to one side. There he addressed the Exalted One in verse:

Many deities and humans
are thinking about happiness,
wishing for happiness.
Please tell me the greatest happiness.

Not associating with fools,
associating with the wise,
honoring those worthy of honor;
this is the greatest happiness.

Living in the proper environment,
having done meritorious deeds in the past,
setting oneself in the right direction;
this is the greatest happiness.

Becoming learned and knowledgeable,
being well-trained and disciplined,
speaking in a meaningful way;
this is the greatest happiness.

Serving one's father and mother,
providing for one's wife and children,
being orderly in one's occupation;
this is the greatest happiness.

Sharing and being righteous,
helping relatives,
avoiding harmful actions;
this is the greatest happiness.

Ceasing and abstaining from evil,
refraining from intoxicants,
being diligent in virtue;
this is the greatest happiness.

Showing respect and being humble, content and grateful, hearing
the dhamma at the proper time;
this is the greatest happiness.

Being patient, speaking kind and gentle words, meeting with spiritual people, discussing dhamma at the proper time;
this is the greatest happiness.

Exercising discipline, living a religious life, perceiving the noble truths,
and realizing nibbana;
this is the greatest happiness.

If when experiencing worldly conditions, one's mind is not shaken, but remains fearless, free from sorrow and passion;
this is the greatest happiness.

Those who follow this path, will remain undefeated and will prosper in every way;
that is the greatest happiness.

JEWEL SUTRA

Whatever beings are here assembled whether of earth or of heaven,
may all these beings be happy and listen closely to what is spoken.

So, indeed, listen all you beings,
show loving-kindness to humans
who day and night bring you offerings, and guard them vigilantly.

Whatever treasure is here or beyond,
or the precious jewel in the heavens,
none is equal to the Perfect One.
In the Buddha is this precious jewel;
by this truth may there be well-being.

Extinction, dispassion, deathlessness excellence; this attained the tranquil Sakyan sage. There is nothing equal to that teaching.
In the Dhamma is this precious jewel;
by this truth may there be well-being.

That purity praised by the Buddha,
concentration with immediate result;
That concentration has no equal.
In the Dhamma is this precious jewel;
by this truth may there be well-being.

Eight persons praised by the good:
these are four pairs, gift-worthy Disciples of the Perfect One.
Gifts to them yield abundant fruit.
In the Sangha is this precious jewel;
by this truth may there be well-being.

With firm minds applying themselves,
persevering in Gotama's teaching,
they reach the goal; in the deathless,
they enjoy supreme peace.
In the Sangha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

As a firm post grounded in the earth
cannot be shaken by the four winds,
so is the superior person, I say,
who definitely sees the noble truths.
In the Sangha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

Those who comprehend the noble truths
well taught by him of deep wisdom,
even if they are very negligent,
do not take an eighth existence.
In the Sangha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

With his attainment of insight,
three states are at once abandoned;
view of self, doubt,
and clinging to rites and rituals.
Freed from the four states of misery
he cannot do the six heinous deeds.
In the Sangha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

Though he might do some evil deed
in body, speech, or mind,
he cannot hide it; such is impossible for one who has seen the path.
In the Sangha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

Like woodland groves in bloom, in the first heat of the summertime, is the sublime dhamma he taught, leading to nibbana, the highest good.
In the Buddha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

Noble, knower of nibbana, boon-giver,
boon-bringer, he taught the great sublime dhamma. In the Buddha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

The past extinct with no new becoming.
Their minds detached from future existence,
old seeds destroyed, craving uprooted;
the wise are extinguished like a lamp.
In the Sangha is this precious jewel:
by this truth may there be well-being.

Whatever beings are here assembled, whether of earth or heaven; we revere the perfected Buddha, honored by gods and men;
may there be well-being.

Whatever beings are here assembled, of earth or heavens; we revere the perfected dhamma,
honored by gods and men;
may there be well-being.

Whatever beings are here assembled, of earth or
heavens; we revere the perfected sangha,
honored by gods and men;
may there be well-being.

LOVING KINDNESS SUTRA

Skilled in good, wishing to attain a state of calm, so should one behave:
able, upright, perfectly upright,
open-minded, gentle, free from pride.

Contented, easily supportable; with few duties, of light livelihood;
controlled in senses, discreet,
reserved, not greedily attached to family.

One should not commit a slight wrong,
that wise persons might censure;
that there be happiness and security.
May all beings be happy-minded.

Whatever beings there are:
timid, strong, and all other,
long, or huge,
average, short, or large;

Seen or unseen,
living near or far,
born or coming to birth:
May all beings be happy-minded.

Let one not deceive another,
nor despise anyone anywhere.
Neither in anger nor ill-will,
should one wish another harm.

As a mother would risk her own life
to protect her only child,
so should one, to all living beings,
cultivate a boundless heart.

Let one's love pervade the whole world, without any obstructions,
above, below and across,
free of obstruction, enmity, hostility.

Standing, walking, sitting,
or lying down; whenever awake,
one should develop mindfulness,
as this is the highest abode.

Not falling into error, virtuous,
and endowed with insight; giving up attachment to sense-desires,
one is not again subject to birth.

ADVANTAGES OF LOVING-KINDNESS

Monks, eleven advantages can be expected from the release, the deliverance of the mind by familiarizing oneself with thoughts of loving-kindness, by constantly increasing these thoughts, by regarding it as a vehicle of expression, as something to be treasured, by living according to these thoughts, by putting them into practice, by establishing them. What are these eleven?

Happy you sleep, happy you awaken, you have no evil dreams. You are dear to humans and nonhuman Devas protect you. Fire, poison and weapons cannot touch you. Your mind quickly concentrates. Your countenance is serene. You die without confusion of mind. Beyond that, if you fail to attain nibbana, you will be reborn in the Brahma- world. (Repeat introduction)

ADVANTAGES OF FRIENDSHIP SUTRA

He eats well
when away from home.
Many people depend on a person who doesn't betray friendship.

Whatever country he goes to,
market or city,
everywhere they honor a person who
doesn't betray friendship.

Robbers do not overpower him,
royalty does not look down on him.
Triumphant over all enemies is a person who doesn't betray friendship.

Unangered he comes to his own home,
happy in gatherings of people,
the best of relatives is a person who
doesn't betray friendship.

He gives respect and is respected,
honors others and is honored;
praise and fame come to a person who
doesn't betray friendship.

He gives and is given,
venerates and is venerated;
wealth and recognition come to a person who doesn't betray friendship.

He glows like an ember,
is radiant as a deity;
never forsaken by prosperity is a person who doesn't betray friendship.

EIGHT THOUGHTS OF A GREAT BEING

This Dhamma is for one who wants little,
not for one who wants much;
This Dhamma is for the contented,
not for the discontented;

This Dhamma is for the secluded,
not for one who is fond of society;
This Dhamma is for the energetic,
not for the lazy;

This Dhamma is for the mindful,
not for the confused;
This Dhamma is for the composed,
not for the flustered;

This Dhamma is for the wise,
not for the unwise;
This Dhamma is for the precise and the one who delights in exactness, not for the diffused or
the one who delights in diffusion.

TURNING THE WHEEL OF DHAMMA SUTRA

O monks there are two extremes which should not be resorted to by a recluse: there is this attachment to worldly enjoyment in respect of sensual pleasures —low, common, belonging to ordinary man, ignoble, connected with misery; there is this attachment to self-mortification—suffering, ignoble, connected with misery. O monks, without approaching these two extremes, the middle path has been realized by the Tathagata producing insight, producing knowledge, which leads to serenity, deep knowledge, the highest awakening, Nibbana.

And, O monks, what is that middle path which has been realized by the wayfarer, producing insight, producing knowledge leading to serenity, deep knowledge, the highest awakening, Nibbana?

This, O monks, is the noble truth of suffering: birth is suffering, old age is suffering, illness is suffering, death is suffering, association with unpleasant people is suffering, dissociation from the beloved is suffering; not getting what one desires is suffering. In short, the five factors of clinging are suffering.

Idaṃ kho pana bhikkave, dukkha samudayaṃ ariyasaccaṃ: yāyaṃ taṇhā ponobhavikā nandirāgasahagatā, tatratatrābhinandinī, seyyathīdaṃ: kāmataṇhā, bhavataṇhā, vibahavataṇhā. Idaṃ kho pana bhikkhave dukkha nirodhaṃ ariyasaccaṃ, yo tassāy'eva taṇhāya, asesa virāga nirodho cāgo, paṭinissaggo, mutti, anālayo. Idaṃ kho pana bhikkhave, dukkha nirodhagāminī paṭipadā ariyasaccaṃ. Ayameva ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo, seyyathīdaṃ: sammā diṭṭhi, sammā saṅkappo, sammā vācā, sammā kammanto, sammā ājīvo, sammā vāyāmo, sammā sati, sammā samādhi.

Tam kho pan'idaṃ dukkhasamudayaṃ ariyasaccaṃ pahīnan'ti me bhikkhave...

This, O monks, is the noble truth of the arising of suffering: desire leading to birth, passionate delight, finding pleasure here and there, namely, desire for sense pleasures, for becoming, and for nonbecoming This indeed, O monks, is the noble truth of the extinction of suffering, of that very desire, the extinction which comes through complete detachment, giving up, complete abandonment, release, and nonattachment This, O monks, is the noble truth of the path to the extinction of suffering: just this is the noble eightfold path, namely, right view, right intention, right speech, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, and right concentration.

O monks, with reference to the fact, "This is the noble truth of suffering", a fact never heard before, vision arose, cognition arose, wisdom arose, knowledge arose, and light arose in me. O monks, with reference to the fact, "This noble truth of suffering should be comprehended", a fact never heard before, vision arose, cognition arose, wisdom arose, knowledge arose, and light arose in me. O monks, with reference to the fact, "This noble truth of suffering has been comprehended", a fact never heard before, vision arose, cognition arose, wisdom arose, knowledge arose, and light arose in me.

O monks, with reference to the fact, "This is the noble truth of the arising of suffering ... " O monks, with reference to the fact, "This noble truth of the arising of suffering should be abandoned"...

O monks, with reference to the fact, "This is the noble truth of the extinction of suffering"... O monks, with reference to the fact, "This noble truth of the extinction of suffering should be realized"... O monks, with reference to the fact, "This noble truth of the extinction of suffering has been realized"...

O monks, with reference to the fact, "This is the noble truth of the path leading to the extinction of suffering"... O monks, with reference to the fact, "This noble truth of the path leading to the extinction of suffering should be developed"... O monks, with reference to the fact, "This noble truth of the path leading to the extinction of suffering has been developed", a fact never heard before, vision arose, cognition arose, wisdom arose, knowledge arose, and light arose in me.

O monks, as long as my vision and knowledge of the three aspects in these twelve ways with regard to the four noble truths was not perfectly clear to me, I did not claim to have attained the incomparable Buddhahood, the Supreme Enlightenment in this world with its Maras and Brahmas, with its monks and priests, with its gods and men. Only when my vision and knowledge of the three aspects in these twelve ways with regard to the four noble truths was perfectly clear to me, did I claim to have attained the incomparable Buddhahood, the Supreme Enlightenment in this world with its Maras and Brahmas, with its monks and priests, with its gods and men. Also the knowledge and vision arose in me that my freedom is unassailable. This is my last birth. Now there is no more re-becoming.

When the Lord said thus, the group of five monks were happy and approved the words of the Lord.

When this analysis was given, the eye of dhamma which is perfectly clear and free from stain, arose in the Venerable Kondañña, namely, "whatever has the quality of arising, has the quality of extinction."

THE ANALYSIS OF TRUTH SUTRA

Friends, what is the noble truth of the path leading to the end of suffering? This alone, the noble eightfold path, to wit: right view, right thought, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, right concentration.

What friends, is right view: That indeed, friends, knowledge in suffering, ... in the arising of suffering, ... in the extinction of suffering, ... in the path leading to the extinction of suffering. Friends, this is called right view.

What, friends, is right thought? The thought of renunciation ... of freedom from malice ... Of freedom from cruelty. Friends, this is called right thought.

What, friends is right speech? Abstaining from falsehood, ... from slander, ... from rough speech. Friends, this is called right speech.

What, friends, is right action? Abstaining from killing, ... from stealing, ... from sexual misconduct. Friends, this is called right action.

Katamo c'āvuso sammā-ājivo? Idhāvuso ariyasāvako micchā-ājivaṃ, pahāya sammā-ājivena jīvikaṃ kappeti. Ayaṃ vuccat'āvuso sammā-ājivo.

Katamo c'āvuso sammāvāyāmo? Idh'āvuso bhikkhu anuppannānaṃ pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ anuppādāya chandaṃ janeti, vāyamati, viriyaṃ ārabhati, cittaṃ paggaṇhāti, padahati. Uppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ ṭhitiyā, asammosāya, bhiyyobhāvāya, vepullāya, bhāvanāya, pāripūriyā chandaṃ janeti, vāyamati, viriyaṃ ārabhati, cittaṃ paggaṇhāti, padahati. Ayaṃ vuccat'āvuso, sammāvāyāmo.

Katamā c'āvuso sammāsati? Idh'avuso bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati, ātāpi, sampajāno, satimā, vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṃ; vedanāsu vedanāupassi viharati, ātapi, sampajāno, satimā, vineyya loke abhijjhādomanassaṃ; citte cittānupassī viharati, ātapi sampajāno, satimā, vineyya loke abhijjhā domanassaṃ; dhammesu dhammānupassi viharati, ātapi, sampajāno, satimā, vineyya loke abhijjhā domanassaṃ. Ayam vuccat' āvuso, sammāsati.

What, friends, is right livelihood? Herein friends, a noble disciple giving up wrong livelihood gets his living through right livelihood. Friends, this is called right livelihood.

What, friends, is right effort? Herein friends, a monk produces a wish, strives, starts an effort, holds out his mind, exerts for the nonarising of evil and unskillful mind states which have not arisen. He produces a wish, strives, starts an effort, holds out his mind, exerts for the destruction of evil and unskillful mind states which have arisen. He produces a wish, strives, starts an effort, holds out his mind, exerts for the arising of skillful mind states which have not arisen. He produces a wish, strives, starts an effort, holds out his mind, exerts for the stability, for the absence of confusion, for the increase, for the fullness, for the cultivation of the mind, for the fulfillment of skillful mind states that have arisen. Friends, this is called right effort.

Friends, what is right mindfulness? Herein friends, a monk lives seeing the body in the body, zealous, thoughtful, mindful, disciplining in the world covetousness and dejectedness; seeing feeling in feeling, zealous, thoughtful, mindful, disciplining in the world covetousness and dejection; seeing the mind in the mind, zealous, thoughtful, mindful, disciplining in the world covetousness and dejection; seeing mental states in mental states, zealous, thoughtful, mindful, disciplining in the world covetousness and dejection. Friends, this is called right mindfulness.

Katamo c'āvuso sammāsamādhi? Idh' āvuso bhikkhu, vivic'eva kāmehi, vivicca akusalehi dhammehi, savitakkaṃ, savicāraṃ vivekajaṃ, pītisukhaṃ, paṭhamajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati. Ayaṃ vuccat' āvuso, sammā samādhi.

Idaṃ vuccat' āvuso, dukkh-nirodha-gāminī-paṭipadā ariyasaccaṃ.

What friends, is right concentration? Herein, friends, a monk, quite secluded from sense pleasures, secluded from unwholesome states of mind, enters and dwells in the first jhana, accompanied by applied and sustained thought with rapture and happiness born of seclusion. With the subsiding of applied and sustained thought, he enters and dwells in the second jhana, which has internal confidence and unification of mind, is without applied and sustained thought, and is filled with rapture and happiness born of concentration. With the fading away of rapture, he dwells in equanimity, mindful and discerning, and he experiences in his own person that happiness of which the noble ones say "happily lives he who has equanimity and is mindful". Thus he enters and dwells in the third jhana. With the abandoning of pleasure and pain, and with the previous disappearance of joy and grief, he enters and dwells in the fourth jhana which has neither-pain-nor-pleasure and has purity of mindfulness due to equanimity. Friends, this is called right concentration.

This, O Friends, is said to be the Noble Truth of the path leading to the cessation of suffering.

FOUR PROTECTIVE MEDITATIONS

Contemplation on Buddha

A virtuous monk should practice the fourfold protective meditation: reflection on Buddha; loving kindness; impure nature of the body; and death.

An intelligent monk should meditate on the Buddha, endowed with infinite and pervasive qualities, reflecting on these qualities.

That Buddha has destroyed alone all the defilements together with the Vasanas and with an extremely pure mind, has always deserved adoration.

That Buddha has rightly realized by himself, in every way, all matters pertaining to all times and has attained omniscience alone.

The leader is endowed with the knowledge of insight, extensive as the sky, and is endowed with good practices, like the precepts.

The Buddha has rightly gone to the blissful place; he is endowed with fruitful speech; he has known the three worlds in their entirety.

The Buddha has become supreme among all beings by his manifold qualities. He has subdued by various means that which should be subdued.

That Buddha is alone a teacher to the entire world in all matters. He is a noble treasure unto the qualities like fortune and prosperity.

His wisdom is directed towards all matters and He has compassion for all beings. Benefactor to himself and others, supreme in all qualities.

Having completed all perfections, with the wisdom gained, He freed Himself and then, out of compassion, He used Dhamma to free others too.

His rupakaya which is visible in itself is inconceivable. How much more so is his dharmakaya, endowed with unique wisdom.

Loving Kindness Meditation

Having compared oneself with others, one should practice loving-kindness towards all beings realizing everyone desires happiness.

May I, free from sorrow, always be happy; and may those who desire my welfare, are indifferent towards me, or hate me, also be happy.

May all beings who live in this vicinity and those who live in other kingdoms of this world-system be happy.

May all beings living in every world-system and each element of life in such a system be happy, having achieved the highest bliss.

Likewise, women, men, noble, and ignoble, gods, men, those living in noble states, and in the ten directions: may all these beings be happy.

Meditation on the Impurities

The monk perceiving this body as putrid as a conscious and nonconscious entity, should meditate on its putridness.

The thirty-two impurities of my body are abhorrent in respect of color, form, associable elements and space.

Abhorrent, indeed, are the things that fall from the body. The body, though supported by pure things, rests itself in impurity.

Like a worm born in excreta, this body is also born in excreta. Like a full cesspit, this body is full of excreta inside.

Just as fat pours itself from a pot of fat, so impure matters flows out from this body. Like a cesspit, this body is an abode to the hosts of insects.

This body is like a boil, a disease, a wound; it is incurable. It is extremely abhorrent. It is comparable to a decomposed corpse.

Contemplation on Death

Seeing with wisdom the end of life in others, comparable to a lamp kept in a windy place, one should meditate on death.

Just as in this world beings who once enjoyed great prosperity will die, even so will I too die. Death will indeed come to me.

Uppattiyā sahe vedaṃ maraṇaṃ āgataṃ sadā

āsevate satata matta hitābhilāsī pappoti so ti vipulaṃ hata pāri pantho seṭṭhaṃ sukhaṃ munivisiṭṭha mataṃ sukhena cāti

This death has come along with birth. Like an executioner, death always seeks an opportunity.

Life, without halting for a moment, and ever keen on moving, runs like the sun that hastens to set after its rise.

Life ends like lightning, a water bubble, a dewdrop, or a line drawn on water. Death is ultimately unavoidable, just as a determined murderer is.

Even two sages of great fame, virtue and intelligence, were instantly destroyed by death. Then how could I possibly be saved from death?

Through internal causes, or external injuries, within the twinkling of an eye I die. Moreover, I continue dying every instant.

The Great Sorrowful Stages of Life

Having practiced this fourfold protective meditation, the monk who has put forth effort should reflect on the eight great sorrowful stages.

The sorrow pertaining to: birth; old age; disease; death; birth in the pain-world; past and future cycles of birth; and the current search for food to feed our senses. These are the eight sorrowful stages of life.

A person who, desirous of his own welfare and knowing the types of meditation, practices this meditation regularly in the morning and the evening, will, having destroyed the impediments, happily attain the supreme state of nibbana, extolled as the highest bliss by the Buddha.

FOUNDATIONS OF MINDFULNESS SUTRA

This is the only way, Monks, for the purification of beings, for the overcoming of grief and lamentation, for the ending of suffering and frustration, for reaching the right path, and for the attainment of Nibbana—namely, the Four Foundations of mindfulness.

What are the four? Monks, here a monk lives contemplating the body in the body—ardent, clearly comprehending and mindful, having outgrown covetousness for and anguish about the world.

He lives contemplating feelings in feelings—ardent, clearly comprehending and mindful, having outgrown covetousness for and anguish about the world.

He lives contemplating the mind in the mind—ardent, clearly comprehending and mindful, having outgrown covetousness for and anguish about the world.

He lives contemplating mental objects in mental objects—ardent, clearly comprehending and mindful, having outgrown covetousness for and anguish about the world.

Summary of instructions for practicing the four foundations of mindfulness (from the Satipatthana Sutta):

I. CONTEMPLATION OF THE BODY

A. Mindfulness of breathing

"And monks, how does a monk live practicing body contemplation in the body? Monks, herein, a monk having gone to the forest or to the foot of a tree or to a vacant place, sits down in the cross-legged posture, then keeping his body erect, he establishes mindfulness before him, and mindfully breathes in and mindfully breathes out. Breathing in a long breath, he knows "I am breathing in a long breath". Breathing out a long breath, he knows "I am breathing out a long breath". Breathing in a short breath, he knows "I am breathing in a short breath". Breathing out a short breath, he knows "I am breathing out a short breath". "Alertly aware of the whole body I breathe in," so he trains himself. "Alertly aware of the whole body I breathe out," so he trains himself. "Calming the body I breathe in." so he trains himself. "Calming the body I breathe out," so he trains himself.

B. Body Postures

Again, monks, when walking a monk knows "I am walking", or when standing he knows "I am standing", or when sitting he knows "I am sitting", or when lying down he knows, "I am lying down. In whatever position his body is in he knows that position of the body.

Thus he lives practicing internally body contemplation in the body; or practicing externally body contemplation in the body; or practicing internally and externally, body contemplation in the body. Or he lives contemplating the origination factors in the body; or he lives contemplating the dissolution factors in the body or he lives contemplating origination and dissolution factors in the body. Or the mindfulness that "there is only this body" is established in him in a manner essential for intuitive insight and mindfulness. And he remains completely independent, clinging to nothing in the world.

Monks, thus indeed, a monk lives practicing body contemplation in the body.

C. Mindfulness With Clear Comprehension

Again monks, in walking to and fro, a monk practices clear comprehension; in looking ahead, in looking elsewhere, he practices clear comprehension; in bending and stretching he practices clear comprehension; in wearing the inner and outer robes and in carrying the bowl, he practices clear comprehension; in eating, in drinking, chewing and fasting, he practices clear comprehension; in answering calls of nature, he practices clear comprehension; in walking, standing, sitting, falling asleep, waking, speaking and being silent, he practices clear comprehension (similarly for four elements, body parts, cemetery contemplations).

II CONTEMPLATION OF FEELINGS

And, monks, how does a monk live practicing feeling contemplation in feelings? Monks, herein, a monk when experiencing a pleasant feeling, knows "I am experiencing a pleasant feeling", or when experiencing a painful feeling knows "I am experiencing a painful feeling", or when experiencing a neither painful nor pleasant feeling knows "I am experiencing a neither painful nor pleasant feeling." Or when experiencing a pleasant worldly feeling, knows "I am experiencing a pleasant worldly feeling", or when experiencing a pleasant unworldly feeling, knows "I am experiencing a pleasant unworldly feeling" or when experiencing a painful worldly feeling knows "I am experiencing a painful worldly feeling", or when experiencing a painful unworldly feeling knows "I am experiencing a painful unworldly feeling", or when experiencing a neither painful nor pleasant worldly feeling knows "I am experiencing a neither painful nor pleasant worldly feeling," or when experiencing a neither painful nor pleasant unworldly feeling knows "I am experiencing a neither painful nor pleasant unworldly feeling."

Thus he lives practicing internally feeling contemplation in feelings; or practicing externally feeling contemplation in feelings; or practicing internally and externally, feeling contemplation in feelings. Or he lives contemplating the origination factors in feelings; or he lives contemplating the dissolution factors in feelings, or he lives contemplating origination and dissolution factors in feelings. Or the mindfulness that "there is only this feeling," established in him in a manner essential for intuitive insight and mindfulness. And he remains completely independent, clinging to nothing in the world.

Monks, thus indeed, a monk lives practicing feeling contemplation in feelings.

III. CONTEMPLATION OF MIND

And monks, how does a monk live practicing mind-contemplation in the mind? Monks, herein, a monk knows the lust-affected mind, as lust-affected, or he knows the lust-free mind, as lust-free.

Or he knows the hate-affected mind, as hate-affected; or he knows the hate free mind, as hate-free.

Or he knows the delusion-affected ... delusion-free ... shrunken ... distracted ... developed ... undeveloped ...surpassable ...unsurpassable ...concentrated ...
freed ... unfreed ...

Thus he lives practicing internally mind contemplation in the mind; or practicing externally mind contemplation in the mind; or practicing internally and externally, mind contemplation in the mind. Or he lives contemplating the origination factors in the mind; or he lives contemplating the dissolution factors in the mind, or he lives contemplating origination and dissolution factors in the mind. Or the mindfulness that "there is only this mind", established in him in a manner essential for intuitive insight and mindfulness. And he remains completely independent, clinging to nothing in the world.

Monks, thus indeed, a monk lives practicing mind contemplation in the mind.

IV. CONTEMPLATION OF MENTAL OBJECTS

And monks, how does a monk live practicing mind contemplation in the mind?

Monks, herein, a monk lives practicing mental-object contemplation in mental objects of the five hindrances.

And, monks, how does a monk live practicing mental-object contemplation in mental-objects of the five hindrances?

Monks, herein, when sense desire is present within, the monk knows "There is sense desire in me", or when sense desire is absent within, he knows "There is no sense desire in me". He knows how the arising of a nonarisen sense desire comes to be; he knows how the discarding of an already arisen sense desire comes to be; and he knows how the nonarising in the future of a discarded sense desire comes to be. (etc. for other mental objects)
